MORAL FORCE IDEA AGAIN IN CONTROL IN UNITED STATES
PRESIDENT'S A VOWAL, ENDING PARLEY, SIGNIFICANT.
SEE RATIFICATION
Four-Power Pacific Pact May Be Subject of Long Debate, However.

Washington—President Harding today turns the policy of America back—some will say forward—to the power of moral rather than physical force.

tomorrow, will refer to the days before 1917, when reliance on moral justice was misunderstood pacifism, when the phrase "too proud to fight" unfortunately carried an impression of physical timidity.

"I once believed in armed preparedness," said President Harding to the arms conference.

It was Mr. Harding's associates in the United States who have attacked President Wilson for his refusal in December, 1914, to yield to the pressure for armed preparedness.

Kenosha Man Must Go Back to Prison Cell

The board of the City Federation of Women will hold its monthly meeting at 14 a. m., Thursday, at Janesville hall. It is announced by Mrs. Joanna Sutherland, secretary.

NEW PHONE BOOKS READY, APRIL 21

Wisconsin Company Making Progress in Merger of Two Systems.

With nearly all of the duplicate book copies taken out, arrangements are being made for the publication of a new telephone directory with the customers' listed under the company instead of "Rock" and "Bell" as in the book issued after the consolidation. The book will be issued April 21.

Old customers of the Bell company will retain their numbers, and the old number plus 3,400 will make the new number of former Rock County customers. W. N. Cash, manager, said.

Customers on letters W. N. J. and J. in standard use by the Bell system. Party lines have either two or four people on them. Party lines have been in use since 1910. The system has been improved whereby a patron hears only his ring and one other person instead of four.

Increase in Calls.

A definite increase in the number of local calls has been noticed since the consolidation of the phones. An actual count shows a gain of 1,333 on Jan. 4 as compared with Dec. 4. Based on the figures on the Bell system for the first four months of 1921, more calls are made daily than at that time. The figure for the first four months of 1921 was 28,747. The increase in calls has been due to the laying of additional trunk lines in connecting the two stations. There are now 74 lines from the rural, local and long distance lines of service at the other offices of service at the other offices.

Within the next three weeks, Mr. Cash said, all of the people who have made their change to party lines. The next step will be the installation of the switchboard in the Bell office preparatory to moving the entire building. The new building, at Wisconsin street, Mr. Cash said, he did not expect the switchboard to arrive until June. Work on the new $25,000 addition, to give additional service to the Wisconsin telephone building, will be started in March, according to Mr. Cash. Construction crews, under the general supervision of Benjamin Hanson, are working on different jobs about the city.

Head Office of the Rock County company has been continued in its former capacity and will until the consolidation is completed, when they will be placed in responsible positions with the Wisconsin Telephone company, according to Mr. Cash. Service for the Rock County Farmers' Telephone company is being given by the Bell system.

Use of the prefix in calling a telephone patron is requested until the new book is published. Because of the duplicate phones being taken out, where both are given, customers are requested to call the number given under the Bell system.

A change of $2 for service for installing a desk phone in place of a wall phone will be made for those patrons who did not place their order for the change before Feb. 1. The charge for service for those having a desk or a wall phone is the same.

MORAL FORCE IDEA AGAIN IN CONTROL IN UNITED STATES

World would be ruled by moral justice instead of physical coercion. As did Mr. Wilson before the war clouds with Germany gathered, that America need not prepare for war. Again America asks the other nations to subordinate the theory of armed preparedness which developed militarism in Germany and brought on the most destructive war of history. Again America points to the League of Nations, with her peace-loving army, that peace is better attained by moral suasion than armed conflict.

Except for a general expression of opinion that the world like that held at Washington may again be held at appropriate times, there was no plea for a rigid association of nations, no formula for a league of nations, no substitute for the one created at Versailles. The president is treading cautiously. He doesn't want the debate in the senate to be complicated by extraneous affairs. He is driving a hard bargain for ratification, and the probabilities are that until the treaties are approved by a two-thirds vote of the American senate, the decision of the United States government will be withheld.

One thing at a time is the Harding policy, and while it looks today as if all the treaties will be ratified, there is a bare chance that the four-power pact may be the subject of prolonged debate. In many respects the closing of the Washington conference resembled that at Versailles. The same satisfaction in having concluded a treaty, the same feeling of relief that the committee debates were ended, the same confidence that the whole world would approve and that the dissenting voices would be few and negligible—all is the same today in Washington, with no one daring to predict what the future will bring in the American senate.

Will the democrats join with the republicans and make republican achievement possible? Or will they do as the republicans did when a democratic president brought back a treaty signed by nations from all parts of the globe—will they obstruct it?

Democratic Attitude.

Senator Underwood, democratic leader, believes the treaties should be ratified and that the democrats should confine their partisanship to domestic affairs. If only 14 of his colleagues follow him there will be enough to insure ratification of all the treaties. Public sentiment in the next few weeks will determine whether the democrats shall follow the alleged opposition of Woodrow Wilson, who is reported as against the four power treaty, or whether they will put the treaties out of the way with brief debate and give the republican executive support in further international conferences.

Annual Markets Expo Is Planned

Madison—Temporary organization of an association to plan for an annual market exposition of Wisconsin products was made here late Friday by the state department of markets. L. G. Foster, deputy commissioner of markets, has charge of plans. It is expected the exposition will be held in Milwaukee this year with the next winter, following the state fair, or in connection with the fair. Representatives of interested organizations were at the meeting here.

Minter Writes Love Notes

It was stated following the receipt of a telegram earlier in the evening from Constable Berning that he had under surveillance there a man whose description was said to answer to that of Sands.

A complete description of Sands was telegraphed to Constable Berning with instructions to take the suspect there into custody, provided he answered the details pictured by the local police.

Suspect Arrived.

The suspicions of Constable Berning at Carlin, were aroused when he learned that the man under surveillance at that point planned to board the train Tuesday at Biko, according to word telegraphed here. He communicated with the police here and the latter at his request, sent a description of Sands to him and to Sheriff Harris at Biko.

The police were hopeful Constable Berning's suspicions might prove correct, as they have frankly stated they believed Sands could solve the mystery of Taylor's slaying.

Thinking possibly that the butler feared prosecution on the grand larceny charge preferred against him last summer by the police, they decided it would not be pressed against him; in fact, that it could not be as Taylor, the complaining witness, was dead.

Another angle of the case Tuesday involved the "long and grueling" examination, as detectives describe it, of a well known motion picture actress at her home here. They decided to name her, but omitted who was said to be the person who had indicated intimate friendship with Taylor.

Preparations for Funeral.

While these developments were in progress and the police were sitting the constantly arriving "tips" on the case, preparations were made for the funeral of the dead director Tuesday afternoon. This affair was postponed by the police, for only were 10 uniformed men detailed to keep in order the great crowd expected to gather about St. Paul's Episcopal church, where the funeral was to be held. Men, women and children have gone there to see it, the film notables being in the minority. It is reported, but the shop girl and the working men have made up in numbers for the rumored absence of screen actors.

Flowers Have Come from Many Motion Picture Sources. Including Mary Miles Minter, the actress who sent a huge bouquet of Black Prince roses. Miss Minter took a last look at her friend Friday afternoon. Mabel Normand, another actress, was one of the last to see Taylor. She viewed his body for the last time at the funeral Saturday. While the funeral is in progress, every motion picture studio in Los Angeles will be closed.

As the capacity of the pro-Catholic is limited, half of the seats will be set aside for members of the film colony and the other half for the public in general.

Eight active ball players from the members of the motion picture directors' association and eight honorary ones have been named. In addition there will be a string squad of Canadian ex-service men, who will fire a salute over the casket at the cemetery.

Body in Vault.

The body will be taken to Hollywood cemetery and placed in a vault until relatives determine final disposition.

The mystery of where William Desmond Taylor passed the time between 5 and 6 p. m. last Wednesday, approximately two hours before he was slain, previously unexplained, was solved here Tuesday. Police detectives learned he had gone to a dancing academy for a lesson.

LEGION ASSAILANT GETS INTO TROUBLE

Staats Zeitung, Chicago, in Receiver's Hands—Denounced the Legion.

Chicago—Less than three months after its editors had published an article declaring the American Legion is made up of "bums and tramps," the Illinois Staats Zeitung Monday passed into the hands of a receiver. It will continue publication as a Sunday paper only.

Failure of the newspaper owners to discharge Arthur Lorenz, author of the offending editorial, was given by Frederick W. Bosch, formerly advertising manager, as one of the reasons for the company's failure. He said he had been refused advertising contracts by several big firms when he admitted Lorenz was still employed.

Warner Named Receiver.

Judge Denis E. Sullivan named Fred Warner, former business manager of the company, receiver Monday, following the filing of bankruptcy proceedings in the superior court by Attorney William L. Reed. He acted for three creditors—William Hays, Robert L. Fisher, and Albert Fisher. According to Attorney Reed, the total claims against the company are approximately $15,000.

Asked if the new management would continue to employ Lorenz, against whom action has been brought by the federal government, Attorney Reed said the matter of retaining for his resignation was under consideration.

Owned by New York Man.

Sydney Spielman, son of a New York politician, purchased the newspaper for $25,000 last March, following receipt of a check from the publisher, "Die Feinsten der Fein." Among other things it called the American Legion an "insultation" of the truth, to say freedom of conscience, and to betray organized labor.

Immediately following its publication, an American Legion post filed suit against the company for $100,000 and demanded the discharge of the editor, Col. John V. Clinch, first assistant district attorney, announced he would begin deportation proceedings.

DROWSY COPS WILL BE JOLTED BACK TO LIFE VIA WIRELESS

Chicago—The old-fashioned policeman who "pulled" a box and then spent an hour napping in some sheltered corner, is threatened with a shock in the wrist.

Chicago officials, planning to equip every patrolman with a portable wireless set, are considering transmitting their signals by attaching two electrodes to each patrolman's wrist and attaching his attention by passing an electric impulse through his system. Visible or oral signals are unsuited to the needs of the policeman patrolling a beat, the city wireless experts say, and so they have begun experimenting with the shocking plan.

Berlin policemen have been equipped with an eight pound wireless set which transmits a shock when headquarters wants a recipient to run to the nearest call box. The instruments are sewed in the officer's clothes, so he has no chance to forget and leave them at home.

By a system of selective transmission, Chicago wireless engineers believe it will be possible to confine the signal to signals to policemen in certain specified areas. A general alarm might wake all the sleeping policemen in the city.

FEB. 17 FOR MEET

Public schools in Janesville will close a week from Friday in order to allow the teaching staff of both grades and high school to attend the thirty-second annual convention of the Wisconsin Teachers' association at Madison Feb. 17-18. Programs for the convention were sent to all teachers in Wisconsin Monday by Superintendents. The convention will be held at the Hotel Hamilton, Madison. The program includes a banquet, orchestra music and a continual procession of men, women and children made it a delightful occasion. Souvenir covers distributed at the building were thronged with visitors from noon until after 9:00 o'clock in the evening.

Crowds at Bank Opening of New Building at Lake

Lake Geneva—The First National Bank of Lake Geneva dedicated its new home last Saturday. Hundreds of people from the city and county responded to the invitation and inspected the new quarters, which are handsome, complete and modern in every sense of the word. Beautiful flowers, orchestra music and a continual procession of men, women and children made it a delightful occasion. Souvenir covers distributed at the building were thronged with visitors from noon until after 9:00 o'clock in the evening.

THIS IS WISCONSIN'S OPPORTUNITY.

Wisconsin has a great opportunity in the next few months to carry on a campaign and elect a man to the United States senate who will fittingly represent the state in that body. There has never been a time when a dirt farmer was so needed in the senate. The agricultural bloc is made up of lawyers. One exception is Mr. Capper of Kansas, a newspaper publisher. True, these lawyers represent agricultural districts, but they are still far from the close touch with the real
personal questions that are constantly being presented.

In the present movement of the agricultural forces of the nation, there is no suggestion of the radicalism of the past—the populist, farmers' alliance,
non-partisan league and greenbacker days.
Those called or call for the establishment of unsound methods in finance, economics and politics.
Now, submitted to the acid test, the demands
made through the agricultural bloc have a firm
foundation in common sense, good business judgment and recognition of the relation of interests. There is not an iota of the nonpartisan league schemes in the platform of the agricultural bloc. There is nothing that is not workable. It has not appealed and will not appeal to the radicals who do not know exactly what they do want but have a hazy idea that whatever it is,
it must be different. The agricultural bloc has recognized the interdependence of the farmer and all other industry and that no selfish program
can be carried out but there must be the element of neighborly relations. To speak for the farmer,
and these relations, to carry his message direct,
we have no genuine dirt farmer representative from the agricultural states. It is time we had.
This is the opportunity for Wisconsin.

This state has been for a long time the fertile field for the quack in politics. He has come from North Dakota where the patient was rescued just at the point of death. We also have our own special Wisconsin brand of quack, vehement in language, consumed with ego, unhampered by respect for truth, crying for virtue and having none.

We have business farmers in Wisconsin. In a time of general depression in the one-crop
states, Wisconsin has been the splendid shining example of better times. Diversification of crops and the fact that our farmers are interested here largely in the manufacture of products
of the dairy, have tended to make him more independent than where he is the victim of wind and weather, one product and one market. For that reason the opportunity for a dirt farmer in the senate is Wisconsin's. Here are scores of farmers as capable of representing the state in the senate as some one learned in the tomes of the law, skilled in the tricks of politics and a highly developed ability to shift sail to catch the passing breeze. Such a man is here. His name is of no consequence now. There are scores who qualify. Such a man should sit in Washington,
the representative of the people of Wisconsin
and speak for the industry that has made Wisconsin great and the nation prouder, as well as all others whose prosperity is so closely allied to agriculture. To him should be thrown the torch and to him the toga be given. To him would be given also the power to represent the people and not merely the ambitions, idiosyncrasies and notions of a person.

While the American Legion was playing to a great and appreciative audience Monday night the

up for consideration.

Fifty cities voted in city management in 1921,
and no city that has ever adopted the form has gone back to the old method.

We will all agree that the Legion went over the top and reached its objective, with the same old American rush.

lorn, Bill Borah and Bill LaFollette.

Cleveland will not put city management into operation until 1924. But the people will have that much time to prepare for it and in the mean-

Superstitions in Spite of Ourselves

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

New York—Are you superstitious? Do you experience a strange thrill of apprehension when you spill salt, or when a black cat crosses your path, or when Friday, the 13th comes around in the calendar? Do you carry a rabbit's foot in your pocket, or wear a charm on your watch-fob? If so, you can console yourself with the thought that your secret weakness is shared by
at least 85 per cent of mankind, and probably more, including the greatest modern scientists and intellectuals. In fact, according to the recent announcement of a prominent psychologist, there are only two kinds of people: Those who will admit they're superstitious, and those who won't.

Not long ago, a large New York department store, finding that a new line of Oriental jewelry
had failed to make itself popular with the feminine public, changed its advertisements to read:
"New lot of Chinese lucky pieces that will charm
away all fortune." As a result the next day,
the aisles around the jewelry counter were blocked
with a mob of enthusiastic shoppers, eager to obtain the magic baubles. Furthermore, the mob was not entirely feminine, but contained many men.

Other stores, witnessing the success of the "lucky line," have now taken it up, and in single blocks on Fifth Avenue you can find half a dozen shops with conspicuous window-displays of "lucky charms." The fashionable leather and gift shops have them in ivory and amber and jade at very high prices; while the drug stores
have the near jade and composition amber kind which lie on the same counter and blend very nicely with the toilet articles.

"The wearing of charms," one dealer says,
"has become especially popular since the war
when many soldiers adopted the habit of carrying lucky tokens—usually trinkets given them by their best girls—as a protection against the enemies' gas and bullets. Well, many of them who wore the charms came safely home, and you can't persuade them to discard them."
"I know a man who has one of the brightest minds I've ever met. He's a big engineer with a reputation, and he also has a well developed taste
for books and pictures. He's an agnostic and he swears he doesn't even believe in fate, but he carries in his pocket a little gold hand that was presented to him by an old woman near the front lines in France. He never goes anywhere without it, although, he says, he doesn't exactly believe in it."

"The old lady gave it to him just before he took a detail of engineers up to bridge a stream. The enemy was waiting for them on the other side,
and every man felt sure that the building of that
bridge would be the last work he would ever do.
But just before they reached the stream, a thick fog descended upon the place and completely hid
them from the enemy until the work was finished.
Every man returned safe and sound. After that the chief engineer carefully treasured his little gold hand."

"The fact that superstition often has a strong hold upon men of high degree of education and intelligence was definitely proved some years ago by U. S. Addison Bruce, who conducted an investigation of the prevalence of superstition among the teaching staff of Harvard University. He himself was astonished by the results which showed, he says, that 70.4 per cent of the faculty were either consciously or unconsciously under superstitious influence."

Said one Harvard professor: "I must say that I don't think I should feel very comfortable if seated 13 at a meal, or living in a house number 13."
Another confessed that he always picked up pins when he found them lying on the floor or
on the sidewalk. "It seems to me," he said,
"that I do this automatically, but there may be a superstitious remnant in it."

"My old, superstitious practice, if you can call it such," wrote still another, "is to knock on wood after boasting of my health or good fortune."
One instructor admitted that he had a certain amount of faith in the truth of the old saying, "Sins before breakfast, and you will cry before night."

Another said: "I have an instinctive dislike
of seeing the new moon over my left shoulder."
Bruce thinks that the influence of popular superstitions upon the educated adult mind may be explained largely by the fact that they are acquired in childhood—"that plastic period when the mind is most receptive and the critical faculty most in abeyance. The folk tales of the nursery and the kitchen," he says, "the superstitious sayings of the older members of the family circle make a tremendous impression on the mind of the child. This would not matter so much were it not for the fact that impressions
of childhood, especially when they appeal strongly to the emotional in man, are apt to persist throughout life."

He also points out that superstition has played an important part in the development of all religions and governments and quotes a Jewish anthropologist, Dr. J. G. Frazer, who declares that "the salutary principle of respect for government can be traced, in part, at all events, to the superstitious reverence with which primitive peoples have always regarded their chiefs, holding them in awe as persons possessed of supernatural powers. This attitude, still much in evidence among savage tribes, seems to have been shared by the ancestors of all Aryan peoples; while in England a lingering relic
of it remained until as late as the eighteenth century, the nobles of that period could be healed by touch of the king's hand."

"Similarly, respect for property was vastly strengthened by that form of superstition known as 'taboo' by which the supernatural power supposed to reside in the person of the chieftain
was transmitted to his movable property—his clothes, tools, weapons, ornaments, in fact, to everything he touched."

"Respect for human life was long promoted by the world-wide belief in the ability of the ghost of a murdered man to haunt his slayer."

Many of our most popular superstitions today have been traced to religious sources, as,
for instance, the unlucky nature of Friday and the number 13. The dread of the number 13 is well-nigh universal. In Rome and Florence it is never used in numbering houses, nor on theater boxes nor in making up lottery lists. In India, the 13th year is feared like plague. In Persia people carefully refrain from pronouncing the number, and in Turkey it is avoided as far as possible in conversation. It is thought that 13 acquired its unfortunate reputation at the Lord's Supper when thirteen men sat at table.
The last to take his place is supposed to have been Judas. Yet there is no proof that Judas was the last to be seated, and, furthermore,
there is considerable evidence to show that the evil thirteen existed long before the Christian era. It is generally accepted, however, that Friday is held to be unlucky because Christ was crucified on that day.

The history of superstition, indeed, presents
some of the most fascinating aspects, but it is not at all flattering to the race. It shows that in spite of all our railroads and motor cars and gas bombs
and aeroplanes, we are emotionally just about as primitive as we were when the race was young. We still gaze cautiously at the new moon over the proper shoulder, and we still cherish a half-ashamed belief in the power of charms.

One the present administration will walk with care and attention to the public needs.

After giving the world a much-desired naval holiday the arms delegates can take one for themselves.

It is well even in the face of approaching
spring not to scrap the overcoat yet.

PIRATE DAYS.

We're reading tales of Captain Kidd
And Old Swashbuckler Captain Brand;
We're deep in all the details they did
Upon the sea and on the land.
And Bud and I set out each night
To sail the rolling Spanish main,
Two youngsters with the old delight,
Back in the pirate days again.

We fight with Morgan's buccaners.
The black flag flying at the mast;
The clash of steel is in our ears,
The pistol the incessant roar.
Round and adventurous are both
We take our stand with honest men,
Battling the cruel lust for gold.
And a wide-eyed crew again.

Last night we found a man marooned,
And saw another walk the plank.
We helped the lady who had swooned,
And watched a vessel sail at sank.
Buck's learned the pirates all by name,
While I thereof later came to know
The old delight I used to claim,
When I was young so long ago.

I haven't read for thirty years
The pirate tales that thrilled of old.
But now another lad appears
Who wants to have these stories told.
And here we are—two eager boys
Wading the decks that swim with gore,
Claiming if adventure later boys
Back in the pirate days once more.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY M. MOUTON

THE SULLIVAN LAW.

I try to make my living
By sucking to my job.
I'm just a common citizen,
An ordinary job.
Now I want a gunman
With some price on my knob
I'd hit the high spots only.
In fact, I'd be a snob.

A thug one midnight stopped me
And copped my watch and chain.
I tried to reason with him,
But it was all in vain.
He had a gun, I didn't.
My belongings were plain.
I snatched him on the wrist and said:
"Don't you do that again."

A burglar stormed my castle
And gobbled my silverware.
My home was unprotected,
No shooting-irons there.
Oh, I was in a passion.
Every man returned safe and sound.
I pierced him through and through again
With a most vicious snarl.

I threw a dishrag at him.
Oh, I was very tough.
And then he took my wallet
And buttons from my cuff.
Then, with a feather duster,
I grimly stabbed the tough.
I'll bet that he was sorry
And had more than enough.

He said: "There's no gun on you,
But if there was, and then
You tried to point it at me,
They'd chuck you in the pen.
The law, you see, protects me
While I annex your pen.
A gunman is a gunman;
You're just a citizen."

His argument was perfect,
And what he said was true.
I made a face. That's all the law
Will let us poor folk do.

I isn't at all difficult to know what will be on the first page when you sit down to your breakfast.
Mrs. Beatrice Barnstable, an attractive blonde, shot and killed her husband while he was cracking the family Ford. She will go into the movies. The jury acquitted her after hearing out three minutes.

"Mrs. Sasparass Purdy, of Mush, Iowa, shot
her husband at the breakfast table yesterday morning because he criticized the bacon. She claims his conduct was unbearable. He lived two hours. Mrs. Purdy, who is a beautiful brunette, has long wanted to go on the stage, and this is her opportunity."

Who's Who Today

JOHN T. ADAMS.

One of the three or four men mentioned as possible successors to Senator Kenyon in the upper house in John T. Adams, chairman of the Republican national committee. Kenyon may accept the appointment to the federal circuit bench
in his home state, offered him
by President Harding. Harding's action has drawn considerable discussion because of Kenyon's long residence in the farm life in the senate.

Adams, wealthy manufacturer, was born at Dubuque, Ia., Dec. 25, 1862. He obtained his education at Dubuque
grade and high schools and Dubuque college. In 1908 he managed the campaign of U.
S. Senator Allison who defeated the former Senator Cummins in the primaries that year. He managed the Taft campaign
in the Iowa primaries in 1912.

Adams was named member of the republican national committee for Iowa that year
and has been a member of the executive committee and campaign committees
ever since.

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Feb. 7, 1882.—It has been definitely announced that the third or fourth Mack trial of Mrs.
Mack for complicity in the murder of her husband, will be taken up at the next term of the Jefferson court. Mrs. Mack is now living at her home in Belmont, having been released four years ago on $3,000 bail. The Concordia Society will give a masquerade tonight.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

Feb. 7, 1892.—Sunday.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Feb. 7, 1912.—The Rock River Machine Co., which was organized here three years ago, and which has prospered greatly since that time, is now looking for larger quarters, either here or in some other city. Rockford has made a good offer, and it is stated that another city has also.
But the company will stay here if a site for a factory is furnished.

TEN YEARS AGO

Feb. 7, 1912.—Plans are now being started by the local A. O. U. of Eagles for the state convention, which will be held here for three days in June. Besides the regular business meetings that will be held will be many events in which the whole town will take an interest. There will be a balloon ascension, automobile and motorcycle races and a parade.

THE FOURTH COMMANDMENT.

Remember the sabbath day, to keep it holy. Six days shall thou labour, and do all thy work; but the seventh day is the sabbath of the Lord thy God: in it thou shalt not do any work, thou,
nor thy son, nor thy daughter, nor thy manser-vant, nor thy maid-servant, nor thy cattle, nor thy stranger that is within thy gates: for in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea,
and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day: wherefore the Lord blessed the sabbath
day, and hallowed it.—Exodus 20: 8-11.

THE PROFESSIONAL NURSE

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

When the Dentists Disagree.
I have gastric ulcer. X-ray negatives showed several abscesses in the roots of my teeth and some of the fillings of the roots placed too close to the nerve. The X-ray specialist said that undoubtedly caused the stomach
ulcer. But when my own dentist turned I told him what this other dentist had found and he scoffed at
the idea, insisting my teeth are in perfect condition. Can stomach ulcer be caused from the teeth? (D.
M.)

Answer—Yes. When the dentist disagrees consult your physician. Root canal filling which extended even very little beyond the canal so as to infringe upon the wall of the socket
should be removed in any case. It seems that the dentist cannot be certain of the soundness of his root canal fillings without the aid of X-ray after he has completed the filling to the best of his ability. The type of dentist who is willing to remove such fillings and do them over in some cases for that reason. The type of dentist that feels that he is responsible for grave injuries to his patient
by the failure of the filling of the tooth is a good dentist. A good man
may have failed to be a nurse.
Complete success.

Chaplines.

Every winter my hands get in a terrible condition from chapping. Can you suggest anything to relieve this trouble? (Miss D. A.)

Answer—This lotion has proved very effective in preventing and relieving chapping and redness of the hands:

Boric acid 1 ounce
Glycerin 1 ounce
Tricaine 80 grains
Water 1 pint
Mix thoroughly. Frequently dip all fingers and add sufficient water to make up for evaporation. A few drops of this should be applied to the hands two or three times daily
after washing and before the hands
are dried. The finished lotion when cool should be stored in a glass bottle with a cork stopper.
A few drops of any scent may be added if desired, such as perfume or two of alcohol to the lotion and ordinary denatured alcohol is safe for this purpose, although the lotion is more grateful to the skin
without the alcohol.

Q. Are any cargo vessels sailing
that have crews entirely American?
A. Yes. The "Western Maid" sailing
for Russia with grain is the first American cargo vessel to sail
the high seas with a crew that is 100 per cent American.

Q. What scores is it possible to make in cribbage? A. 125.
Q. The best hand counts 25 (if dealer has 4 fives and turns a jack).
There is not possible to count 19, 25,
26, and 27.

Q. When will a class in army
nursing begin? A. B. C.
A. Early in March new classes of army nurses will begin at Walter Reed General Hospital, Washington,
D. C., and Letterman General Hospital, The Presidio, San Francisco.

Q. Please settle an argument by which of these is a gall on a deer's liver? A. B. C.
A. Deer are characterized by the absence of a gall bladder.

Q. What gives Indian ink its blackness? A. B. C.
A. The gloss or brilliancy of India ink is apparently due, for the most part, to the quality of the ink. The best grades of Chinese and Japanese inks which are imported possess a brilliance of tone which has not been attained, by most manufacturers
here. However, the addition of sufficient karna arabic to the ink may give the desired gloss and appearance.

Q. What gives India ink its
blackness? A. B. C.
A. There could have been no authentic census of the Indians in 1912.
A government expert estimates the number of Indians at that time at 1,115,000.

Q. How was the Ruck of AKes
written? A. B. C.
A. According to the story, Wasley, the great leader and hymn
writer, and Toplady, the Anglican churchman, met and were drawn into a very heated argument over some current theological questions. They argued until long after midnight.

Neither yielded a jot. When they separated, Toplady was brought up to a high state of spiritual excitement. Not being able to sleep, he sat and thought, in a moment of exaltation the words of the hymn
"Rock of Ages" began to come to his mind. He began to write. Before dawn he had produced this master hymn.

Q. What per cent of opium is morphine? A. B. C.
A. Morphine constitutes from one-eighth to one-sixteenth of the weight of opium. Good opium will assay at least 9 per cent morphine. As a drug one-fourth of a grain of morphine
has as much effect upon the system
as one grain of opium.

GOLF CLUBS! WANT MONEY FOR GREEN? THEN RAISE HOGS

Chicago—Hogs versus dancing
as adjuncts of golf clubs came into discussion at the recent meeting
of the greens committee of the United States Golf association and the hogs won favor among the delegates.

J. T. Ling, Skokie club, Chicago,
where the national open championship will be held next summer, declared the budget of his club called for $81,000 this year, and only $17,000 of that sum was awarded to him for upkeep of the course
while dancing and other social activities would take much of it.

The delegation asserted the club
had gone in for economy although not parsimony and was scavenging
what had hitherto gone to waste.
The club had not only utilized
spare ground to raise all needed
vegetables for the club house table,
but had bought a pack of hogs
which fattened on the table refuse.

The golf-bred porkers grew from squealing pigs in the spring to fat
grunting porkers in the fall, and slaughter time. This credited the club with a neat sum, which helped keep up the greens without drawing on the dance fund.

The discussion that followed showed that the delegates favored keeping down social funds and
spending more on the golf links,
even if the greens budget had to be helped by hogs. One man remarked that perhaps such a selfish
predilection had forced women in New York recently to organize a golf club of their own.

MT. OLIVE HAS 22-ACRE TRACT

Cemetery Enlarged by Purchase of Seven Acres—Many Improvements Made.

Graveling and cindering of the highways started the past year will be completed this year by the Mt. Olive Cemetery association which held its annual meeting Monday night.

Officers re-elected are: Rev. F. J. Ryan, president; J. J. Cunningham, secretary; Edward Campbell, treasurer; Charles M. O'Neil, re-elected for three years and J. J. Cunningham was chosen to succeed J. P. Cullen whose term expired.

A new sidewalk was built from the entrance to Oak Hill to the entrance of Mt. Olive along the highway. The new sidewalk was paved with the existing stone and the old sidewalk was removed and replaced.

The cemetery now has 22 acres of land and improvements planned this year will complete the renovation.

Mrs. Richards, 91, Wisconsin Pioneer, Dies

After a life of 91 years, spent usefully in a domestic and religious manner, and during which she had seen the great advancement of civilization in Wisconsin, Mrs. E. E. Richards, widow of Dr. J. B. Richards, died Monday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. T. W. Nuzum, 602 Milwaukee avenue, with whom she had made her home for the past six years, the last two of which she had been confined with illness.

Ellen Eliza Washburn was born in Oxford, Maine, Dec. 5, 1831, and was married to Dr. J. B. Richards in Chelsea, Mass., in 1859. After living three years in Boston, they came to La Crosse, reaching that city on the first train to arrive, the road just having been completed. Leaving La Crosse in 1876, they went to Virginia, later moving south and living in Broadhead. With her husband, she came to Janesville in 1904, where Dr. Richards was city health officer from 1910 to 1912. Dr. Richards died in 1913.

From childhood, Mrs. Richards was extremely religious, and was a leader in church, events wherever she went. At the time of her death she was a member of Church 7 of the Carroll Methodist church and when active had been an enterprising factor of church life.

Of the seven children born to Dr. and Mrs. Richards, three are living: J. B. Richards, city attorney of Duluth, Minn.; Mrs. T. W. Nuzum and Dr. F. T. Richards, both of Janesville. She also leaves a grandchild, a son and two great-grandchildren, Herriek Nuzum and Donald Richards.

The funeral will be held at the Nuzum home at 10:30 Wednesday afternoon. Rev. Henry C. E. Coon officiating. Interment will be in Oak Hill cemetery.

River Victim May Be Evelyn Nesbit Thaw

Washington. — Having found a marked resemblance between the features of a woman whose body was found Monday in the Potomac river, and photographs of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, a woman who was recently reported to have disappeared from her New York home, Washington police Tuesday asked police authorities in New York to cooperate in efforts to identify the body.

New York. — Finding of a body in the Potomac said to resemble that of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, Tuesday, recalled the fact that last October she attempted suicide by poison. Recently she was evicted from a tea room she had been running in the upper tendorola district. Then she dropped from sight.

BUMPETY-BUMP! LAKOTAS TO TRY ROLLER SKATING

The Coliseum rink will be the scene this month of one of the most interesting parties of the year when members of the Lakota club will entertain their wives and friends at a roller skating party, preceded by one of the historic basketball battles between the married and single members of the club.

Decision to stage the affair was made at a meeting Monday night. Each member will be allowed to invite one couple and 200 indications were received from 300 to 400 attending the joyous. The club held a skating party several years ago which was a great success.

George Sherman was appointed chairman of the arrangements committee with the following as his assistants: Joseph W. Denning, Frank Birmingham, William Kobay, and Frank Suther. The date for the affair has not been set but it will be held before March 1.

OBITUARY

Mrs. S. Baker, Englewood, Ill. Clinton—Word has been received here of the death of Mrs. S. Baker, Englewood, Ill., sister of the late A. E. McKinney, and aunt of P. F. McKinney, who died at her home in Beloit, Monday, Rev. H. J. Collins, officiating. Burial will be at Allen's Grove, Many Clinton friends remember Mrs. Baker as a resident of Allen's Grove and a frequent visitor at the McKinneys.

Mrs. F. F. Pearson. Mrs. F. F. Pearson, 65, a native of Norway, and a resident of Janesville for more than 60 years, died at her home, 514 South Main street, Monday night after an illness of three months.

Minnie Josephine Carlson was born in Christiania, Norway, in 1856, and came to this country with her parents at the age of two, settling in Janesville at that time. In 1895 she was married to Frank F. Pearson, who survives her. There are no children. Mrs. Pearson's beautiful character and disposition made a large circle of friends for her. Other survivors are: a brother, Nels Carlson, two sisters, Mrs. Ella Slocum and Elizabeth Carlson; three nieces, Mrs. F. DeLambert, Mrs. George Clark, and Mrs. M. L. Davidson, Chicago; three step-sons, Lee, Roy, and Earl Pearson; and a grand-niece and a grand-nephew, Leon DeLambert and Mildred Clark.

Funeral services will be held from the home at 2:30 Thursday afternoon. Rev. Henry C. E. Coon, Trinity Episcopal church officiating.

St. Mary's to Pay Off Debt; School Planned

Officers of St. Mary's parish were re-elected for another two years Monday night. The two re-elected were William B. Sullivan, secretary, and F. E. Duss, treasurer. It is the policy of the parish to pay off the debt of the parish, and the pastor vice-president, while a Monsignor, now Monsignor Palmer, Milwaukee, is a member of the board, so that but two officers are voted upon.

Business of the church was taken up, and it was voted to pay off the church debt of $17,000 as soon as possible and start plans for a new parochial school.

A drive is now being conducted for the Catholic Institutions of the world, which will require another $7,000 of the parish. Approval of parish officers in front of the church was made, and the matter will be referred to the council.

Dr. Peirce, Well Known Dentist, Dies in Chicago

Dr. Charles T. Peirce, 50 South Main street, one of Janesville's oldest and most prominent dentists, died at the American hospital, Chicago, shortly after noon Tuesday, following an operation performed there at 8 a. m. Tuesday on his throat. It was stated that the operation was successful, but that Dr. Peirce was too weak to stand the after-effects. He had been suffering from throat trouble for more than a year, and had gone to Chicago for the operation Monday morning.

Dr. Peirce had been a resident of Janesville for more than 25 years, having come here from Madison. He studied dentistry under Dr. George McCauley, and had been in active practice for many years.

He is survived by his wife and three children, Griffith, Katherine and Harry.

JUDGE RECOVERS
FROM INFLUENZA;
STOUGHTON MAN UP

Judge H. L. Maxfield returned to the municipal court here Tuesday, feeling much improved after two weeks' illness with influenza. He was taken ill while visiting at the home of Francis J. McGovern, Milwaukee.

First before Judge Maxfield since his return to duty was Ervin Stevens, Stoughton, arrested on a warrant charging the confidence game in which William Howard of Klessen's store was the complaining witness. It is alleged Stevens procured a $25.00 brown suit from Klessen's by a confidence game. He asked for an examination which was set for Feb. 14.

ROBBERS TIE BELOIT
FAMILY TO CHAIRS;
ESCAPE WITH $52

Police here are on the lookout for two armed men who entered a house on Pleasant street, Beloit, early Monday night, bound the occupants to chairs and escaped with $52. Authorities have a good description of the pair.

POLICE COURT FOR PETTY DRY CASES

Dougherty Would Save Federal Courts for Greater Offenses.

Petty violations of the prohibition laws should be brought into police courts and not before the federal courts, declared United States District Attorney William H. Dougherty, this city, speaking before the Rotary club at luncheon at the Grand hotel Monday Tuesday.

The dignity of the federal courts should not be made a common vehicle of petty cases, and such cases should be dealt with quickly in municipal courts and save the federal courts for larger cases, such as interstate liquor traffic and large liquor stores.

The district attorney said it is too costly to make definite statements with respect to the success of prohibition and conclude judgment on the basis of another five years, not be paid for another five years. The speaker discussed the principles of the United States government and the jurisdiction of the judiciary department.

"Properly posted" campaign which has for its slogan "Prosperity is as near as we make it."

F. L. Clements, reported on the city council meeting of Monday night. Announcement was made by Frank Sinclair, president of the Janesville Bowling association, that in losing the 1922 state bowling tournament to Green Bay, Janesville has made an excellent preliminary campaign for the 1924 meet.

3 DYERS FROM HERE
ATTEND CONVENTION

Louis Kerstel and Arthur Koberger, of the Badger Steam Dry Works, and William Brockhaus, of the Janesville Chemical Dry Works, left for Chicago Tuesday, to attend the annual convention of the National Dyers and Cleaners' association at the La Salle hotel. The convention continues for four days with a banquet and dance, Thursday night. More than 700 attended last year's meeting, which was held in St. Louis.

NITSCHER ANNOUNCES
CUT IN I. H. C. TRACTORS

The cut in the price of tractors has been heralded all over the world. It is the first big break in the prices of agricultural implements and as the farmer is the one who holds the key to the future just now, it means a tremendous sum in the aggregate of saving. The International Harvester company is announcing its cut of $200 in two new tractors and $200 on three plow machines through its dealers here. Emil Nitscher, who carries the line.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR TOURIST CAMP HERE THIS YEAR

Prospects for a tourist camp in Janesville this year are looking more brightly with the council showing active interest in getting the project under way.

When the matter was brought up by Ald. E. P. Kelly at the council meeting, Monday night, city attorney Roger C. Cunningham explained that the Kiwanis club is already working on plans and will come to the council with a request for aid within the near future. He said the Kiwanis club has already volunteered to furnish free the labor to construct any necessary buildings and predict that lumber and other articles would be donated.

The Kiwanis committee is now investigating to procure a good site. The council decided to withhold action until a request was received from that committee.

Hibernians Plan
Drama, March 17

To make plans for a drama to be staged at the Myers theater on St. Patrick's day, March 17, J. J. Sheridan, president of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, has called an open meeting to be held at St. Patrick's school, Wednesday night.

All willing to take part are urged to be present as it is probable the cost for the drama will be picked at this meeting.

The play is being arranged by the A. O. U. and the Ladies Auxiliary and Rev. Father W. E. McDonnell, Evansville, has been engaged to coach the participants. He is expected to be at the meeting, Wednesday night, which is called for 8 o'clock.

GAS RATE HEARING SET FOR FEB. 16

Fight Over Plant Value Expected to Feature Session Next Week.

Hearing on the application of the city of Janesville for lower gas rates here will be held before the railroad commission at Madison, Feb. 16, Secretary C. D. Se Cheverell announced Tuesday. City Attorney Roger C. Cunningham with the aid of Byron T. Gifford, consulting engineer, will present the city's case with a possibility that Mayor T. H. Welsh and Ald. J. K. Jensen, chairman of the council gas committee, may also attend.

The hearing, which is set for 10 a. m., is open to the public. The railroad commission's action is the result of application by the city for a reduction of rates on the New Gas Light company following a report from Mr. Gifford in which he fixed the rate making value of the plant at approximately $60,000 as against the company's own value of between $700,000 and $800,000. As the company is allowed 8 per cent return on its investment, the valuation of the plant is an important item in figuring rates and the main arguments before the commission are expected to center around this point of plant value.

U. W's BASKET FIVE MAY RECEIVE BIG OVERHAULING

Madison—Three weeks of readjustment of the University of Wisconsin basketball team, Dr. T. G. Meanwell, coach, believes, will be in condition to open the second half of its schedule against Illinois Feb. 11.

"The Badgers" 17 to 15 upset by Minnesota after Wisconsin carried the play into its territory throughout the contest, but without ability to connect with the basket, is expected to result in a changed lineup.

Throughout the season center has been weak, because of lack of an experienced player. Gibson, a sophomore, appears to stop into the center position. His timely shots won the game for Wisconsin at town, and although only playing a few final minutes in the Minnesota game, he added a field basket to his team's score.

Captain Censer at forward has made but one basket in the two last games, while Taylor, his running mate, has done practically all of Wisconsin's scoring. He was responsible for 13 of Wisconsin's 15 points against Minnesota.

If able to develop the center and forward, Coach Meanwell will be less concerned with the guard positions where Williams and Tebell are stationed regularly. Effort

Gage, a substitute for two years, although less rugged, is regarded as the probable player to stop into the center position. His timely shots won the game for Wisconsin at town, and although only playing a few final minutes in the Minnesota game, he added a field basket to his team's score.

CHILDREN AND PARENTS IN BIG PRIZE CONTEST

Here is a chance for boys and girls as well as grown-ups to win a prize well worth while. All you have to do is to write a 4-line rhyme on Dr. Price's Phosphate Baking Powder, using only the words which appear on the label of the Dr. Price can (front and back) and on the printed slip which is found in each Dr. Price can.

Here is a 4-line rhyme as an example of what you can do:

Biscuits, muffins, pie or cake,
Two teaspoons of this powder take,
The Price's Co. Guarantee
No alum in the cake to bake.

Isn't that easy. Everyone likes to make rhymes and here is a chance to spend a fascinating hour or two writing rhymes on Dr. Price's and perhaps winning a substantial prize for your effort.

30 CASH PRIZES

For the rhyme selected as best a prize of $500 will be given; for the second, third and fourth best rhymes prizes of $100, $50 and $25 respectively will be given. And besides those prizes 35 prizes of $5 each will be given for the next 35 best rhymes. With such a long list of prizes as these, it would be a pity not to try your hand at it!

All rhymes must be received by February 21, 1922. Only words appearing on the label of the Dr. Price can (front and back) and on the printed slip contained inside the Dr. Price can may be used. These words may be used as often as desired, but no other words will be allowed.

ANYONE MAY ENTER

the Contest, but only one rhyme from each person will be considered. In case of ties, the full amount of the prize will be given to each trying contestant. Write plainly on only one side of a sheet of paper and address your rhyme to: Dr. Price's Baking Powder, 1400 Independence Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

ZUPPKE PLANS EARLY SPRING GRID TRAINING

Urbana, Ill.—Coach Bob Zupke will begin preparations for his 1922 football campaign Wednesday when he will meet all candidates for next season's squad.

During the past season, it was said by football experts that the Illinois play two weeks behind time, with the exception of the Ohio game, the only conference game they won. This is one of the reasons that Zupke plans an exceptionally early season. It will give him an opportunity to select materials in the spring, rather than play most of the season before picking the best men for the jobs as was the case last season.

Injuries began early last spring and took a heavy toll, continuing to such extent this fall that some suspected the "Zupke way" was too strenuous in the early season and that the men weaken rather than harden, or become more susceptible to injuries.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.
George Morison goes to work at the house of Planter when he is a boy. He becomes a horse trainer and as a part of the job he is thrown into the hands of Sylvia Planter when she is a girl. She is thrown from her horse and thinking her unconscious, George kisses her. She awakes and she loves her. She drives him from the place and George threatens him, but in a fair fight, he beats her. He goes to Princeton, meets Bailey, a fellow who gets a place on the football team and aids his college to win from Harvard. He makes many acquaintances. He has determined to marry Sylvia Planter, but she has married him and meets her several times, each time seemingly widening the breach between them. The determination, Betty Allison is very kind to George, and at her home, meets her friend, Sylvia, which is embarrassing.

"I hope you're feeling better."
"Better." I haven't been ill," she flashed.
"You helped him out."
"Last night Mrs. Sinclair told us you had a headache."
"You ought to know, Betty, that means I'm not particularly sorry."
But George noticed she no longer looked at him. She hurried on. "Dolly," he heard her laugh. "You must have sat up rather late."
"Trying to forget my worry about you, Sylvia. Guess it gave me your headache."
George shrugged his shoulders and edged away, musing his chances of seeing her alone. They were alone, for as usual she was a magnet, yet took place for him and against her after luncheon, bringing them at the same moment from different directions to the empty hall. She wanted to hurry by, as if he were a disturbing shadow, but he barred her way.

"I suppose I should say I hurt you last night. I'll say it, if you wish, but I'm not particularly sorry."
She showed him her hands, then, spread them before him. They trembled, but that was all. They recorded no marks of his precipitation.
"I shouldn't expect you to be sorry. After that certainly you will never speak to me again."
"Will you tell me who it is?" he asked.
Her temper blazed.
"You always know what to expect from the always."
She ran back to the door through which she had entered.
"Oh, Dolly!"
Dulymple met her on the threshold.
"Take me for a walk," she said. "It won't hurt you."
Dulymple indicated George.
"You're coming."
She shook her head and ran lightly upstairs.
"No, I'm not going," George said. "She's right. The fresh air will do you good."
"Thanks," Dulymple answered, potentially. "I'm quite capable of preserving for myself."
He went out in search of his hat and coat.

George watched him, letting all his dislike escape. Continually they hovered on the edge of a break, but Dulymple wouldn't permit it now. George was confident that the seed sown last night would flower.

He was glad when Mundy telephoned before dinner about some difficulties of transportation that might have been solved the next day. George sprang at the excuse, however, refused Blodgett's offer of a car to town, and drove to the station. Dulymple and Sylvia hadn't returned.

XIV
In town, too, Goodhue read his discontent.
"You look tired out, George," he said the next morning. "Evidently Blodgett's party was much better."
"I'm learning to dislike parties," George answered. "You were wise to duck it. What was the matter? Didn't fancy the Blodgett brand of hospitality?"

"Promised my mother to spend the week-end at Westbury. I'd have enjoyed it. I'm really growing fond of Blodgett."

There it was again, and you couldn't question Goodhue. He had said just what he meant, for he kept his opinions to himself. Every word of praise for Blodgett reached George as a direct charge of disloyalty, of bad judgment, of narrow-mindedness. His irritation increased. He was grateful for the mass of work in which he was involved. That chained his imagination by day, but at night he wearily reviewed the past five years, seeking his points of weakness, some fatal omission.

Perhaps his chief fault had been too self-centered a pursuit of Sylvia. Because of her he had repressed the instincts to which he saw other men pandering as a matter of course. Dulymple did, yet she preferred him, perhaps to the point of making a gift of herself. He had avoided even those more legitimate pleasures of which the dice had appealed to him as a type. What was the use of it? Why had he done it? Yet even now, and still because of her, when you came to think of it, he had no desire to turn aside to the brighter places where planned creatures flutter fatuously. It was a species of tragedy that he had to keep to himself for one who didn't want him.

It started at him at breakfast from the paper of the newspaper. It was amazing that the journal saw nothing grotesque in such a union; found it, to the contrary, sensible and beneficial, not only to the persons involved, but to the entire country. But Planter, the article pointed out, was no longer capable of bringing a resistance to his house which was a notable stone in the country's financial structure. Should any change weaken that the entire building would react. His son was at present too young and inexperienced to watch that stone, to keep it intact. Later, of course, but one had to consider the present. To be sure there were partners, but after the fashion of great estates Mr. Planter had avoided admitting any outstanding personal life and chose a happy circumstance that Cupid, and so forth—for the senior partner of Blodgett and Sinclair was more than an outstanding personality in Wall Street. Some of his recent achievements were comparable with Mr. Planter's earlier ones. The dissolution of the firm and his induction into the house of Planter and Company were prophesied.

George continued to eat his breakfast mechanically. At least it wasn't Dulymple, yet that resolution would have been less astonishing. Josiah Blodgett, fat, middle-aged, of no family, married to the beautiful and brilliant Sylvia Planter. But was it grotesque? Wasn't the paper right? He had had plenty of proof that his own judgment of Blodgett was worthless. He crumpled the paper in his hand and stood up. His judgment was worth this: he was willing to swear Sylvia Planter didn't love the man she had elected to marry. What did other people think?

Dinner Stories

"Do you think I shall live until I'm ninety, doctor?"
"Forty."
"Do you think, gamble, smoke, or have you any vices or any kind?"
"No, I don't think I never gamble. I loathe smoking; in fact, I haven't any vices."
"Well, good heavens, what do you want to live another 50 years for?"

John Charlesy Chapman was a new member of the American Press Illustrators' association, and at the convention in Philadelphia his loud laugh was heard above everything. When some speaker pulled a gag that Chapman liked. After two days of public luncheons and dinners at which this boisterous laugh had attracted almost as much attention as the comic speeches themselves, the veterans decided to spring a practical joke on the unsophisticated Chapman. They passed the word that Chapman was to be called on suddenly for a speech and at his first attempt to be funny, the picture was to laugh in a concerted roar that would break up the meeting.

Chapman arose and said: "For two days I have been indulging in laughing my head off at every clown and feeble gag pulled by the officers of this association in the hope that I would curry favor with them and that they would call on me for a speech. But I was misled; out before I bought their favor, and I am now too exhausted to talk. Thank you." And he sat down. The picture was dumbfounded. In fact, Chapman's loud laughter had been so sincere that they were headed for him and that he must spike their guns.

BEAUTY CHATS by Edna Kent Forbes

THE PRETTY GIRL

It is a great pleasure to contemplate a really pretty girl, one of those fortunate creatures who were born pretty and who do not do anything to spoil her charm.

The world is remarkably full of pretty girls. One day I amused myself by counting those who were unquestionably pretty. I should say that about one out of every 10 could be considered beautiful, and of the other nine at least half were really quite passably pretty.

Pretness is not rare. There is a certain unspoiled freshness of beauty which unfortunately is rare, and which is becoming more so all the time. The girl who has abundantly thick hair with a natural gloss of pretty lights in it, with a clean, clear complexion, and the marvelous pink glow of health in her cheeks, the girl who carries her head well and her shoulders back, whose eyes sparkle with the mere pleasure of living—this is the type that is becoming rare.

I am told that one reason this is true is because our girls are assuming the share of financial responsibility. Because numbers of them shut themselves up in offices and spend their day pouring over account books. I am afraid this is so, because the type I am talking about is the rule and not the exception in the girls' colleges where there is greater opportunity for wholesome, carefree exercise, fresh air and outdoor life.

"Tinker Bob" Stories

by Carlyle H. Holcomb

HOW CAME THE LONG NECK?

"Tinker Bob" was having a wonderful time visiting with the Ostrich. Yet there were some things he did not understand. "What do you have such a long neck for any way?" he asked. For he noticed that they had to get down on their knees in order to talk with him.

"Well, that is because our Grandfather got into trouble when he took that apple from the top of the tree. It seems that people always get into trouble when they take things that don't belong to them. You see that when he took the apple and was swinging out of the branches his head caught in the crotch of a limb and he found himself fast. He pulled and he pulled and he could not get away. But the more he pulled, the longer his neck grew, until it was longer than his legs. When he stood up straight his head was loosened from the crotch of the limb and he was made free again. Then this long neck was given to all of his children and grandchildren till the whole Ostrich family have long necks."

"I don't suppose you like apples any more?" inquired Tinker. "No, we stay out here in the desert where there are no apples."

"Don't you ever get thirsty out here where it is so dry?"

"Oh, this place is near the Jungle where there is plenty of water, and we have such long necks that we don't need water more than once a week."

"I suppose you can run very fast, can't you?" asked Tinker looking at the tall fellow's legs.

"Well, if you want a ride we will show you how fast we can go."

The big fellow got down on his knees and he called one of his companions and told him to get down. Then he signaled Tinker Bob to get on, and Tinker Bob got on to the back of the other. They raised their feet and started away, spreading their wings as they ran.

Poor Silky wished that he hadn't laughed at those funny folks before he had finished his ride.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON.

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of sixteen and in the third year of high school. I am the only child at home. I have a stepmother and she is very cruel to me. She does not allow me to have boy or girl company. She strikes me and does not want me to have anything nice to wear.

I try to please her in every way, but she continually complains of me to my father and he will not believe me because she is very nice to me when he is around.

Would you advise me to work and pay my board at my sister's or stay at home and finish my high school?

BOBBY.

I would advise you to finish your high school no matter how much money it costs you. After that you will be better able to earn a good living and can leave home, work and pay board at your sister's. Be a brave little soul when your stepmother is angry and know that better times are ahead. If you have the courage to stick it out in order to get an education.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of seventeen. My folks do not live in this city. I am a housewife and have had a number of dates. All my friends took my address and they now write me.

I want more with one particular boy while home and I had gone with him before. He writes me every other day, but he writes sensible letters. He has now found out I write to these other boys and he says he has not much confidence in me on account of my corresponding with other boys. I really love this boy and my folks like him very much. I am afraid I am about to lose his friendship on account of my writing the other boys. Should I drop my correspondence with them? Do you think he loves me on account of not wanting me to correspond with others? He has asked me to be his wife, but I refused and said I was too young. My folks have no objections to any of my boy friends and would not object to my marrying, but I want to finish school. I am a junior in high. He is twenty-two. Please tell me how I can get him to write to me. He does not go with a girl, but I do. Is it all right for me to do so?

IRISH.

You are too young, little girl, to be yourself to a boy although he seems decent or like any one else at present. I would advise you to write and say you are sorry he feels as he does because you have enjoyed his friendship and his letters so much, but you still think you are too young to make your choice and for the present at least you want to have more than one friend. Tell him that you will be very sorry if he decides to stop writing. When he sees you are determined he will care more than ever for you and I do not believe he will cease to correspond.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am the mother of seven children and my husband is not good to me. He just whips me all the time and he hits the children. He takes his money on Saturday and goes to shows and doesn't get me anything at all. I ask what he does with all his money and he says at my sister's and tells me it is none of my business.

What do you think is better for me and my children, to have him or get a divorce from him?

TROUBLE.

I would advise you to go to law with your troubles, either to a lawyer or directly to the court of probate. There you will receive the best possible advice and your husband will be made to give you money and to stop whipping you or you will be given a divorce and alimony.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

RECIPES FOR THE DAY

Cornmeal Pancakes—Scald one cup of yellow cornmeal with one cup of boiling water; let cool. One or two eggs, well beaten, one teaspoon of sugar, one-half teaspoon of salt, two teaspoons baking powder, one cup flour and milk to make thin batter. Either sweet or sour milk may be used, using a little baking soda with sour.

A good syrup to use with these pancakes is made of one cup of brown sugar, two-thirds cup of granulated sugar, one cup of water. Cook until thick as desired. Toasted cheese sandwiches may be made from ordinary cheese sandwiches toasted on both sides, or the bread may be toasted on one side first, then spread with the toasted sides next the cheese and then toasted on the outside.

Fresh ham may be cooked as an ordinary oven roast with dressing or as a pot roast. In the latter case brown on all sides, then add a little water and let cook slowly, well seasoned, until tender, like a beef pot roast.

When you haven't met for a long time, both naturally wonder what changes Time has wrought. Keep that schoolgirl complexion and he will say the years have left you unchanged.

Still—That Schoolgirl Complexion

When must beauty cease? Never, if you know how to keep it. The charm of beautiful maturity may rival that of early youth if wholesome, ever alluring freshness is not allowed to fade.

A firm, fine skin, smooth and free from blemishes, makes every woman seem young. Every woman can have such a complexion—the secret is simple, the means within the reach of all.

Cleopatra kept her youth

She reached the height of her fame and beauty when some women imagine they must fade and grow old. Keeping her youthful charms and freshness by the same simple means which we recommend today.

Cosmetic cleanliness was a daily rite, and the cleansers employed were palm and olive oils. This kept her complexion fresh and smooth, stimulated to healthful functioning.

Most facial disfigurements result from clogging accumulations which collect on the skin, fill up the pores and cause coarseness, blackheads and blotches.

Wash your face every day and these ills won't afflict you.

Use gentle means
The kind of washing we mean is gentle, soothing, cleansing with the modern blend of palm and olive oils.

Its action is mild and the profuse creamy lather seems lotion-like. It leaves the skin wonderfully smooth and fresh while removing every trace of soil.

Such cleansing is most beneficial and prepares the skin for cold cream if you need it and the touch of rouge and powder most women use.

Neck, arms and shoulders should receive the same beautifying treatment, for they are conspicuous as the face for complexion beauty or the lack of it. Use Palmolive for bathing and let it do for your body what it does for your face. The price allows it.

Yours for 10 cents

This modest sum is possible through gigantic production which keeps the Palmolive factories working day and night and the importation of the bland mild oils in tremendous volume.

Thus this finest facial soap, which if made in small quantities would cost at least 25 cents, is offered at the price of ordinary soap.

Cosmetics of Cleopatra

Whatever unguents, rouge and powder the queen of beauty used, cleansing with palm and olive oils was a daily rite.

You Can Bring Back Prosperity to America

This Appeal is Not a Drive for Contributions

It is a common-sense, practical suggestion that YOU—without expense, without self-denial, without even the slightest trouble—can follow and, in doing so, you will be truly helping to restore to us the fullest measure of prosperity.

So Little is Needed

If only one-half of the 120,000,000 people in the United States consumed as little as  $\frac{1}{2}$  lb. more of corn every day we would create a market for

535,714 bu. more of corn each day

16,071,420 bu. more of corn each month

64,285,680 bu. more of corn from Feb. 1 to June 1

and just as surely as the sun rises tomorrow the price would be restored by this increased demand to a fair value and the farmer would receive a reasonable return for his work.

Even if the present price of corn were trebled, your  $\frac{1}{2}$  lb. per day would cost you less than  $\frac{3}{4}$  cents a day.

And What You Do Will Actually Save You Money, Gratify You and Make You Healthy!

Just See That One Food Produced From Corn is On Your Table at Least ONCE Each Day.

Eat delicious food, cheap in price but rich in food value, and create a demand for America's great food staple which will bring its price to a fair value.

America CAN'T be wholly prosperous, labor will NOT be fully employed just so long as Corn is marketed at a price which represents an actual loss to the farmer—and that is just what the present price of corn means.

Delicious Dishes Made From Corn

Real Home-Cooking Recipes

CORN BREAD (2 portions).
1 cup cornmeal, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup milk, 1 egg, 1 cup water, 1 cup flour, 1 cup salt, 1 cup baking powder, 1 cup yeast.

CORN MEAL MUFFINS.
1 cup cornmeal, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup milk, 1 egg, 1 cup water, 1 cup flour, 1 cup salt, 1 cup baking powder, 1 cup yeast.

CORN CAKES.
1 pint corn meal, 1 butter, 1 cup milk, 1 egg, 1 cup water, 1 cup flour, 1 cup salt, 1 cup baking powder, 1 cup yeast.

CORNMEAL BISCUITS.
1 cup cornmeal, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup milk, 1 egg, 1 cup water, 1 cup flour, 1 cup salt, 1 cup baking powder, 1 cup yeast.

CORN CRISPER CAKES.
1 cup cornmeal, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup milk, 1 egg, 1 cup water, 1 cup flour, 1 cup salt, 1 cup baking powder, 1 cup yeast.

HOMINY MUSH.
1 cup hominy, 1 cup milk, 1 egg, 1 cup water, 1 cup flour, 1 cup salt, 1 cup baking powder, 1 cup yeast.

FOR SYRUP—USE CORN SYRUP.

Low in price, high in food value, easy to prepare, tempting to the palate, and—when you serve them you are positively creating a demand for corn which will restore its price on a fair value—and that will make America prosperous.

Eat Corn, Reduce Your Living Expenses, Gratify Yourself and Help America!

40% of the total population of the United States gain their living from the farm.

Corn represents 55% of the total value of our grain products, and is grown in every state in the Union.

To produce that much of our Country's raw food material at a heavy loss to the producer cuts deeply into the buying power of the whole nation.

If that many buyers cannot buy, the merchant will not order goods from the manufacturer; the manufacturer cannot hire labor; the working man suffers for the lack of the necessities of life.

If you help create a demand for corn, the farmer can pay his debts and buy merchandise; the merchant can buy more goods; the manufacturer can put more men to work at good wages; and they in turn have money for food and clothes and the comforts of life, and—

The Country Prospers!

The Following Letter Was Received From the Secretary of Agriculture

Washington, D. C., January 17, 1922.
Gentlemen: Recently I had the opportunity to talk quite fully with Mr. Chittenden concerning your proposed appeal through newspaper advertisements for the increased use of corn products for food consumption. Any effort which has for its purpose the intelligent enlargement of our market for corn is to be commended and, if successful, the results should be helpful not alone to the farmers but, through their increased purchasing power, to industry in general and therefore to all citizens. Permit me to take this occasion to say that this recognition of the unfortunate situation in which the farmers of the country now find themselves and the many evidences of the desire to help through such efforts as you are now making is most hopeful. Trusting that your plans may work out beyond your fondest hopes, I am,
Very sincerely,
